Teachers' meeting was held in the primary school on January 15th.
Mr. J. Naismith was a Calgary visitor over the week end.
Highest standing in the grades: Grade III—Rosie Korczynski; Grade VI—James Walker.

A very pleasant evening took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker; a masquerade and prizes were awarded.

HOCKEY NOTES

There is nothing much to report this week only that the weatherman may come to his senses one of these days and give us the ice that we have been waiting so long for.
We hope to start on our league schedule tomorrow (Wednesday) when Macleod will be the visitors (I nearly said "victims") and all the boys hope to turn in a good game and show the home fans that they can play hockey the opinions of other people to the contrary, notwithstanding.
If the ice holds we will have quite a few home games coming up and we hope to have the extreme pleasure of entertaining Gleichen. These Gleichen boys will give the fans a game they will remember for a long time and it won't be all "Gleichen" either.
The Major has had charge of the physical training of the boys and they are in perfect condition and able to stand the bumps.
Well, this will be all for this week but will give you lots more "dope" from now on—at least we hope so.

VULCAN 5 — MACLEOD 1

The above was the score in a Foothills League game played in the local arena last night. The game was fast and clean, only a few minor penalties being handed out. Despite the score, Macleod have a nice team and will not be in the cellar at the end of the season. For the locals, although all played well, special mention might be made of Blunden, Capling and Roy Sharpe in goal. The defence of Geo. Monkman and Smith, and the shooting of Lloyd Monkman, being a feature. The Hockey Executive wish to record their appreciation of the support accorded them by the public, and are confident of providing even better contests for the balance of the season.

Big Audience Attends Fine Band Concert

Long before the time arranged for commencing the concert given by Vulcan citizen's prize band on Sunday evening, the Vulcan theatre was filled to overflowing and many had to be turned away.

Mayor Butchart opened the proceedings with a brief and suitable speech, and the band played "The Maple Leaf" while the vast audience sang heartily.

The first item on the program was given by the band's lady saxophonist Miss Edna McPherson, and quite noticeable is the confidence she has gained in the manipulation of that instrument, rendering two pleasing numbers.

One of the soloists of the evening young Bobbie Simington, who is only four years of age, delighted the audience with two numbers, "Jesus Loves Me, This I Know," and as an encore "Springtime in the Rockies."

Master Harry Washburn rendered a flute solo for the first time before so large an audience, and gave a good account of himself.

The popular Champion violinist, Miss Rhodes, again assisted in brightening the evening's program by playing two popular numbers.

Mr. George Campbell, also of Champion, accompanied by Miss

Campbell, presented two baritone solos which were sung very effectively and much appreciated.

Messrs. Ottewill and Conn were the duettists and they put two numbers over in their usual excellent style.

Mr. Brownbill took the audience by storm with his banjo solo, having to play three times before they were satisfied.

The band, under the baton of Bandmaster Weale, played the following numbers in a manner that left nothing to be desired. This musical aggregation is rendering a real service to the town, and should be encouraged in every possible way.

March: "Excelsior"; Selection "Norwegian Lullaby"; "Home Songs." One of the feature numbers was a comedy which represented the band going on strike, the bandmen leaving the stage one after another, those remaining continuing to play until only the drums were left; this was well received. The other numbers were: "The Gentle Dove" and "Spirit of Liberty."

The evening's accompanists were Miss Reulah Walker and Miss Mabel McPherson.

"God Save the King" by the band closed a most enjoyable concert.

WEDDING BELLS

GOTHARD—MONTGOMERY

On New Year's Day, a wedding of particular interest, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gothard of Brant, when their second daughter Helen Edna, became the bride of Paul Christian Montgomery, second son of H. H. Montgomery of Nanton.

At the hour of 3 o'clock the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. L. K. Glass of Vulcan, the bride entered the living room on the arm of her father, charmingly attired in monnet blue satin dress carrying a bouquet of pink tea roses and fern, and was attended by her sister, Miss Nellie Gothard, dressed in brown crepe who carried pink carnations. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Clarence Mote.

J. W. Jenkins of Aldersyde, lifelong pastor to the couple, performed a most beautiful and impressive ceremony, in the presence of about forty-five relatives and friends.

The home was artistically decorated throughout with pink and white, with sprays of evergreen and roses. In the living room an arch in the form of an alcove, where the ceremony was performed, was beautifully decorated and inter-laced with strips of pink and white, trimmed and covered with evergreen and sprays of roses.

During the reception which followed, Mr. and Mrs. Isaacson sang a duet "Believe me of all those endearing young charms," followed by a vocal solo "You" by Mrs. Isaacson, also piano selections by Mrs. A. M. Motter of Calgary.

A buffet supper was served and the centre of attraction in the dining room was a three-tiered wedding cake, which was cut by the bride, also a table decorated with tall pink lighted tapers where tea was poured by Mrs. E. Hanson.

Early in the evening the happy couple left amid a shower of confetti for a short motor trip to Calgary and other points, after which they will take up residence and be at home to their many friends in the Broadway district.

CLOVER LEAF REBEKAHS INSTALL OFFICERS

The regular meeting night of the local Rebekah lodge was last Monday, January 5th, when their installation of officers was held. There was a very good attendance.

The D.D.P. Sister Teskey of Carmanagay could not be present, being under quarantine at the present time for small pox. Sister McMillan, P.D.D.P., had charge of the installation, and with her local staff, did the work in a very capable way. Sister McMillan presented the retiring Noble Grand, Sister Allan with a P.N.G. Jewel to which Sister Allan replied very suitably.

There is keen interest in lodge affairs and especially in the coming session of the assembly.

The following officers were installed: N.G., Sister Spence; V.G., Sister Lebow; P.G., Sister Allan; Chaplain, Sister Bowler; Warden, Sister Osborne; Con., Sister Lockhart; R.S.N.G., Sister Melvor; L.S.N.G., Sister Hansen; R.S.V.G., Sister Craig; L.S.V.G., Sister M. Lebow; I.G., Sister B. Doane; O.G., Sister E. Doane; Pianist, Sister Mabel McPherson.

NEW FUNERAL HOME

Mr. Lyle Snodgrass is a popular former High Riverite who is being welcomed by townspeople to the business life of the town. He has opened a Funeral Home on the Macleod trail opposite 2nd Street east, an admirable location for this new enterprise.

Mr. Snodgrass is well and favorably known, not only in High River but in Vulcan, Turner Valley and the surrounding district. He came to High River in 1910 with his parents Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Snodgrass and received his entire public and High School education there. For the last six years he has been associated with the Shaver Funeral Home of Calgary, where he has received thorough training and has been entrusted largely with the management of that business during the last two years.

Mr. Snodgrass has secured the property in Vulcan, known as the Martin house on Pacific street, and this will be arranged to contain a display room, rest room and preparation room; he has also been fortunate in enlisting the services of Johnston Bros., as local representatives, and all instructions entrusted to their care will receive prompt and careful attention.

One feature in which Mr. Snodgrass feels great satisfaction is his motor conveyance. This is a silver Knightstown body mounted on a Graham Paige chassis with 97 h.p. motor and four speed transmission. This car is of latest type known as the three-way loader from either side or rear and is convertible for either ambulance or funeral car work. It is an imposing long-lined vehicle of 157 in. wheel base to ensure the utmost in easy riding quality. On the whole Mr. Snodgrass' equipment is all of latest types and compares with the best to be found in Western Canada.

REID HILL COUPLE FORTY YEARS MARRIED

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith when the neighbors congregated at their home for a surprise party in honor of their fortieth wedding anniversary. The bride and groom probably were a little older than they were forty years ago, but both were in good spirits and looking well. Games were played and luncheon served. Mr. Guy Walker very ably presented a gift to Mr. and Mrs. Smith which had been brought by their relatives, but why shouldn't he when he got to kiss the bride.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. B. Lockhart and Ruth; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Walker; Mr. and Mrs. A. McKague; Mr. and Mrs. C. Hawkins; Miss Doris McFall; Mr. and Mrs. M. Lamm; Mr. T. Clifford; Violet and Tommie; Mrs. Peter McIntyre; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Myers and Gordon; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Myers and family; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. NEW YEAR WELCOMED BY VULCAN ELKS

The new year was welcomed in delightful style by the Vulcan Elks and their friends at a dance in the I.O.O.F. hall on New Year's eve.

The dance was the occasion of much merriment and the crowd had a festive appearance by reason of caps and other adjuncts suitable to such an occasion. Just at midnight, Bob Simington, costumed to represent the old year, with Audrey Leverington, representing 1931, made entry to the hall. This was a pretty interlude and was much appreciated.

The supper was all that one could wish, and the catering was in the capable hands of Mrs. Sherman.

Mr. C. Rowland and Miss Jessie Packwood were the fortunate winners of the blankets.

Joe Tomte and his orchestra gave excellent satisfaction and parties of Elks and their ladies from Nanton, and Brant were welcome visitors at a really enjoyable affair.

CHURCHES AND WEEKLIES

"Churches and weekly newspapers are very similar," said the Rev. Canon A. P. Shafford, Montreal, at a gathering of newspapermen recently. "You preach once a week—so do I. You wrestle with the devil—so do I. You have difficulties in making collections—so have I."

"Canada needs good interpreters to clarify her ideals and her standards. The office of the interpreter is the oldest in the world, and the most important."

"Next to the pulpit, the press is the most important interpreter of life to-day, for it is the interpreter of national events."

"The truest newspapers are directing, moulding and shaping public thought. What more important position could a newspaper reach than the moulding and shaping of the thoughts of the people on the important issues of the day."

"The weekly newspaper plays a more important part in the lives of its readers than the daily. The city newspaper is an incident, but the weekly is an episode. It is looked forward to until it arrives; it is then read and digested and talked about until the next one appears. To its subscribers the weekly newspaper is their provender. It is their bible and their lawbook, and it covers all their interests and activities."

"In the final analysis the real value of a newspaper is not commercial or intellectual. It is moral and spiritual, for it keeps blazing before the minds of the people the ideals for which this great Dominion stands."

"If we are to keep this Canada the country that it ought to be, we need unprejudiced interpreters with Dominion ethics and ideals. The province of a newspaper is to keep before people views that are synonymous and symmetrical in relation to the whole. The weekly paper is not the least of those who are contributing to the building of the ship of Canada."

NEXT GOVERNOR GENERAL

Who will be the next Governor-General? The Scots in Canada linger lovingly over the names of Lord Linlithgow, and the Marquis of Louthian who are mentioned as possibilities. Other suggestions are the Earl of Athlone (this should please the Irish) and the Earl of Cromer.

Lord Athlone has been governor-general of South Africa for eight years and is now returning and may not want another post immediately. The Earl of Cromer is Lord Chamberlain, and is a great favorite of the King. The Earl of Louthian is not ambitious for such a post, so it might be well for the general public to start practising on the sterling Scotch name of Linlithgow. The latter peer is in his forties, good looking, democratic, with lots of money and described as a liberal minded Tory.

CAN HAPPEN

This story is told by the Goderich Star: Funny what a little spider can do. The terrific radio interference of the last week was eventually fun to earth on a streetlight in front of the Royal Bowling Alleys. The trouble was found to be spider webs in the socket allowing the high voltage street light current to arc through and putting an effective blanket of interference over the whole town. Two days were spent in running this "little monster" to earth. Several troubles of minor nature were located but this proved to be the big one.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

France is warned that Russians will soon be ready to fight. They'll find the next war different. They won't have any allies to fall down on. God rest you merry, gentlemen, Let nothing you dismay. Things can't be worse; they may improve. One year from Christmas Day.

The primitive man who used to bring his wife into submission with a club was probably not aware that he could achieve the same result by finessing a diamond.

All the solutions offered for the existing conditions boil themselves down to one thing—somebody should do something.

Flowers and detectives featured the Capone wedding in Chicago. The latter were there in expectation of the buds starting to shoot.

A mouse running across the dining room floor of No. 10 Downing St. while Miss Isabel McDonald was entertaining a party of lady friends created much consternation. This, after women were supposed to be emancipated by extended franchise and abbreviated skirts!

No Christmas present is utterly useless but you may have to hold it for a year before you can use it as a Christmas present.

Making calls on New Year's Day has dropped out of fashion, says an exchange. Brokers who were thinking of making calls (on margin) that day will please take note.

A Toronto policeman was shot and killed by a thug whom he was arresting for stealing a car. Those excellent gentlemen, whose sympathetic souls rebel against police officers carrying weapons, would do well by confining their disarmament crusade to thugs, bandits and kidnappers first. Having succeeded there, we shall be glad to take into consideration their proposal to disarm the police.

Sinclair-Lewis' first contribution to literature since he won the Nobel prize is a tirade against his own countrymen, who are now quite convinced that he was right when he modestly declared he was not entitled to the prize.

A recent disturbance in a New York church suggests the thought that attendance at church services might be increased by encouraging the pew, once in a while, to talk back to the pulpit.

Slogans and campaigns to induce people to spend more money are sponsored by governments and big business, and economy is disowned even by economists. Necessity alone mothers that old-fashioned virtue. She doesn't advertise, but as a stabilizer she has governments and banks beaten to a frazzle. Advertising campaigns seek to restore prosperity by getting the people kidding themselves again as they did when prices were soaring beyond values, but necessity is candid and her slogan is "Quit your kiddin' and Get Down to Brass Tacks." She recognizes that you can't live yourself up by the boot straps.

FIFTEEN MINUTES

A perusal of the advertising pages of any popular magazine will show the interested man that by devoting just fifteen minutes to study each day he may become an impassioned public speaker who can sway thousands, or an adagio dancer and twirl his partner around his head like a drum major juggling his baton; he may learn to know the classics of literature and quote them to the boredom of people who must listen to him, or to speak French like a native of some other country; he may learn to play the piano like nobody's business!

In this day of moving pictures, radio programs, automobiles and business rush, it would not seem to be a bad idea if every man, woman and child on the American Continent would set aside fifteen minutes each day to sit in silence and have a personal thoughtful quarter of an hour on the question of whether are we bound and why, what are we going to do with it when we get it, and what's the use of hurrying hither and yon only to have to rush back here and change our clothes to go some place else.

If our ancestors were more thoughtful than we, if their record of philosophy, music and art was better, higher and more permanent than ours, it was because they have more leisure for silent contemplation of a plan of life which they could carry to successful fulfillment.—Kiwaniis Magazine.

PUSHING HER WARES

Australia has taken aggressive steps to bring her products before the notice of the British buyers. She has established a "Dominion Food Shop" in Manchester where Australian dairy produce, fruit, etc., will be sold, while retailers through the city will also sell these goods.

Australia claims that her products have better flavor than the Danish products with which she is competing and that she is sure she can convince Manchester folk of this fact.

Manchester tradesmen are co-operating with special window displays and stocks.

POLITICAL CANADA

Much Legislation Under Different Parties Marks the Year 1930

Ten years from now, twenty years from now, the year 1930 will no doubt be recalled vividly by most people, not only as a time of difficulty and depression, but as a tumultuous election year. The provincial elections of the spring were relatively mild and uneventful, but the boom of the Dominion midsummer campaign will be remembered for many a long year.

The fact that there were two Parliamentary sessions—one Liberal and one Conservative, in one year is not especially noteworthy. But the fact that there were two tariff revisions, directly opposed to each other, in one year is noteworthy.

On May 1, Hon. C. A. Dunning brought down his tariff proposals. On May 6, Premier King announced that elections would be held. On July 28 the Conservatives under R. B. Bennett won a decisive victory and on August 7, ten days after election, Mr. King resigned, Mr. Bennett took office and announced his Cabinet. On Sept. 8 a special session was called, resulting in very drastic tariff changes, and on Sept. 22 Premier Bennett was on his way to the Imperial Conference in London. There has probably never in Parliamentary history, been more action in less time.

At the first 1930 Parliamentary session commencing on Feb. 20, there was much legislation under the Liberal regime.

A bill was passed on March 25 prohibiting the export of liquor to U.S. The vote was 173-11.

There was passed also an amended pensions act; the establishment of an eight-hour-day on federal works; ratification of naval and halibut treaties; bills transferring natural resources to three central provinces; a bill creating Ontario divorce court. The Dunning tariff was however, the big event. It gave increased preference to a large list of British goods, placed tea on the free list; imposed duties on U.S. fruit and vegetables, as well as countervailing duties on a list of articles hit by U.S. tariff; announced intended cancellation of the New Zealand treaty; cut sales tax in two and extended income tax exemptions.

The Conservative special session met on Sept. 8th, mainly for unemployment considerations. The tariff changes made at this time were merely preliminary to more extensive revision in 1931. They included duties increased on 170 tariff items; specific as well as ad valorem duties imposed on imports; the countervailing duties imposed in May were abolished. It was definitely a protectionist tariff, with however, a provision that where manufacturers increased prices, the tariff protection should be withdrawn. This last provision was actually put into effect in November when tariff protection was wiped out on glass.

Within the two weeks special session also, the sum of $20,000,000 was appropriated for unemployment relief, and a bill passed to prevent the dumping of foreign goods.

Premier Bennett, accompanied by Hons. Hugh Guthrie, H. H. Stevens and Durand, attended the Imperial Conference October 1st. He proposed that "We of the British Empire in our joint and several interests, do subscribe to the principle of an Empire preference and that we take without delay, the steps necessary to put it into effective operation." He was supported by the overseas delegates, but failed with the representatives of the British government.

In actual accomplishment, the Imperial Conference, was somewhat of a failure, but the fact that it is to be continued in Ottawa in 1931, is indication that Premier Bennett's suggestions are still open for consideration.

IS IT IMPOSSIBLE?

Man can take a drop of blood and tell the story of the owner's death by the discovery of the presence of a minute particle of poisonous gas; man can circle the earth without touching the ground; man can kill other men twenty miles away; man can weigh the stars of Heaven; man can drag oil from the bowels of the earth; man can compel an icy waterfall to cook his meals a hundred miles from the stream; man can print a million newspaper in an hour man can breed the seeds of oranges; man can coax a hen to lay three hundred and sixty-five eggs in a year. Man, in other words, is quite an ingenious and remarkable package of physical and mental machinery.

When this astonishing person, however, is confronted with one problem he retires, defeated, to his hut. Show him six men without money, and six loaves of bread belonging to men who cannot use it, but who want money for it, and ask him how the six hungry men can be put in possession of the six surplus loaves, and watch him then! It is then that man attends conferences, and appoints committees and holds elections, and makes speeches and cries out that a crisis is upon him, and does a score of useless things, and then retires, defeated, to his hut, leaving in the shivering twilight the tableau of the six hungry men and the six unap-

MAKE BEST OF IT

No Cause for Gloom and Lamentation While Nature Remains Kind

We are saying good-bye to 1930 and will soon be welcoming 1931.

The New Year brings new hopes. Especially do we here in Southern Alberta, hope that 1931 will bring better wheat prices, because that is our big crop, and with good prices for wheat we are fairly sure of some measure of prosperity.

But because wheat prices are low, and because the outlook is none too bright that we may be in for a fairly long period of low prices for that commodity, we should not sit on the doorstep and weep. Let the New Year bring a new vision of agriculture in Southern Alberta and with it a new determination to win out in the face of odds now apparently insurmountable.

Southern Alberta has special advantages which it should capitalize upon. We have our irrigated lands, our foothill country, and our great wheat plains and grazing lands. We have a climate which is especially adaptable to livestock farming. We have a soil which is capable of growing clovers without special treatment. We have plenty of sunshine, our animals are healthy, our vegetables and cereals are "strong" and of unsurpassed flavor. Why should we not endeavor to cash in on these?

Wheat, we may take it, is not going to be a high price within the next year or two. That being the case, 40 acres more or less on the larger farms will not cut much ice. Why not set apart 40 acres or so to grow some of those crops which have been advocated for the dry land farms—alfalfa, sweet clover, corn, coarse grains. With that as a start, something more can be done in livestock than we have been doing. The experiment with 40 acres on the wheat farm may pave the way to a new farm program which will fit better into the economic conditions we are facing today.

On irrigated farms much more can be done in dairying and hog raising than we have been doing.

In the foothills a better type of animals and more mixed farming offers a chance.

On every farm the cow, the hog, the hen and the garden give promise of cutting down store bills, so that the farm income may be conserved.

There's an opportunity—on every farm to try out something better than we have been doing in the past. It may not bring in so much money as wheat at $1.50 a bushel, but it's worth while working for.—Lethbridge Herald.

FERTILE CHINOOK

The fact that the land of this part of Alberta appears to retain its fertility without any effort at fertilization, is frequently discussed. One theory which was given recently, is, to say the least, interesting, and sounds reasonable. Credit is laid to the chinook, which with its sweep and power, carries a limestone deposit from the mountains, scattering over the land coming within its influence. Attention has been called to the haze that hangs along the farther foothill country when a chinook is blowing. This is said to be the limestone in the air. The mountain ranges to the west of us are of limestone and it may easily be that a perpetual though invisible shower of that fertilizer descends upon the land restoring its vitality.

ADVISES ADVERTISING

Advertising will start prosperity on its way back, Roger W. Babson, economist and statistician, is quoted as saying in an interview published in an edition of Editor and Publisher dedicated to the "power of newspaper advertising."

"The tired consumer is getting ready now to put his money to work" Babson said. "And he has more money than he has ever had before, remember that. This depression has had little effect on his earnings. But he has been holding it back. Now he is ready to let loose. Banks and industrial institutions are, likewise, approaching the mood where they will loosen the strings around their idle funds."

"And so I see, advertising as the means to start the ball rolling."

Below are samples of results obtained with wheat on the farms of the following co-operators:

	Yield in Bushels Per Acre
R. S. Irwin, Brant —
Fertilized	37
Unfertilized	22
Increased Yield	15
H. Adams, Vulcan —
Fertilized	35
Unfertilized	26½
Increased Yield	8½
A. R. Dwiggins, Blackie —
Fertilized	26
Unfertilized	16
Increased Yield	10

Satisfactory results were also obtained on the farms of:

H. T. Goodwin High River
D. S. Morrison High River

It is not claimed that the application of these fertilizers will overcome all the difficulties now facing the Western Canadian farmer, but undoubtedly their use will prove to be a great factor in reducing his costs and in enabling him to maintain his place in the world's market.

The use of these Fertilizers is recommended to the Canadian farmer, not in an attempt to burden him with additional loads, but with the desire of assisting him in the solution of his present problems.

CANADA'S STANDING

The Brantford Expositor observes that it will not make pleasant reading for Canadians, to be told that Canada ranks second in the records of fatal accidents. The United States leads the list of all countries in the world for its death rate in accidents, which is 79.2 per 100,000. Canada comes second with 62.5 deaths per 100,000 of the population, while England and Wales have only 41. These are the figures just published by Dr. Louis I. Hublin of the Metropolitan Life. In the course of a recent address he pointed out that motor vehicles were responsible for 31,000 of the 97,000 persons accidentally killed in the United States last year. In addition to these deaths there were 1,000,000 with injuries. These figures are gruesome reminders that every precaution is necessary while driving a motor car.

SCOUTING

Scout Influences Spreading to Every Country in the World

At the beginning of 1930 there were 1,907,772 Boy Scouts and Scout leaders in forty-three different countries, ranging from the United States with 842,548 down to Albania with 388.

The Scout age is usually from twelve to seventeen. Many parents whose older boys have benefitted from Scout training want to see it extended so that their younger boys can also have its advantages.

Scouting as it is known today was first developed for grown men. An Englishman, Sir Robert Baden-Powell, saw in it a way to train and develop troops by utilizing one of the greatest forces in human life—the power of a group to influence an individual.

Our whole inheritance has been influenced by this. For we are peculiarly susceptible to the ideas and attitudes of those about us, particularly in childhood. The power of the group is tremendous; it can develop honesty, bravery or cowardice.

More than thirty years ago Sir Robert combined this power with the love of primitive man for life-out-of-doors. He began getting his troops to learn fire building, and all manner of woodcraft, in groups. A dozen years later, in 1907, the idea was extended to boys. Each troop or patrol of Boy Scouts had an older boy or man to lead and influence it in ways that would develop character.

The idea spread to girls. Girl Guides, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls joined the procession and secured its benefits.

After the war, in 1918 and 1919, Wolf Cub packs, for boys of pre-Scout age were organized in England. Last year there were 213,630 Cubs in the British Empire. The Boy Scout organization in this country is just beginning the development of a younger-boy program of its own, for boys from nine to twelve years old. Another year will see hundreds of American Wolf Cub packs springing into existence.

A boy who grows up out-of-doors, who knows the woods and the feel of wind in his face, the smell of wood-smoke and the clean fragrance of the ground after rain, grows up a good boy.

A printer down East has been arrested for bigamy. How did he get the time?

Winnipeg seems to have a harder time than most places keeping pure. They've given themselves great publicity getting pee wee golf clubs closed on Sunday, while other cities just quietly closed them without any to do. Then remember the fuss they made because the air fleet landed there on a Sunday last fall.

They evidently had real wealth in Pompeii in ancient days. There was recently revealed from under lava and ashes, a home that contained tableware of solid gold, kitchen pots and pans of pure silver with the twelve labors of Hercules engraved on them. Jewels, bracelets, rings were found scattered about. They little dreamed how soon the lava was coming to bury this treasure, and who knows when time will do the same to us.

WHEN LEAGUE FAILS

The League of Nations in which only a casual interest is taken by the average individuals in dependence for its effective functioning on public opinion is a most interesting and important League advance. When public opinion grows indifferent or turns selfishly nationalistic, it makes little headway. One writer says "In most parts it is a struggle between the supporters of the League organized in each separate country and the dead weight of ignorance and old habit and vested interests."

It has done admirable work in many departments, matters of health and so on are all advancing on world wide basis.

But in the great questions in which personal interest, national privilege and prestige are concerned the progress has been very slow.

To quote one writer: "It is sticking now in a matter which intimately affects the happiness of millions through the world. There is more wealth than ever; there is a larger population than before the war; there is greater demand but the demand cannot meet the supply. Chinese die of famine while Canadians burn their grain because they cannot sell it; and Manchester looms idle because dead Chinese do not wear clothes. This is an international evil only to be remedied internationally."

The one thing needed is that nations co-operate to deal with their common miseries in the ways economists of the world have shown.

It is the same old lesson which the nations of Europe learned at the end of the war. We can destroy our neighbors if we like, but we shall destroy ourselves in the process. Or we can co-operate and help each other.

And that is what the League is for—if the nations would only use it.

FOLLY OF WAR

Exhorts All Peoples to Realize the Impracticability and Hopeless Outcome of War

Hon. Arthur Meighen in speaking at Washington recently, spoke in unequivocal terms of his conception of a world imperiled by fear.

"Civilization," he said, "must end war or war will end civilization. War has lost its efficiency; it can only bring defeat and despair for both conquered and conquerors. The policy of the governments is dominated by fear. There has to be found a substitute for armaments, something else that will bring security not only to one but to all."

"The one supremely important task before our world today is to bring about an organization against war. And such an organization cannot be brought about without the United States. I despair of finding a substitute for armaments except in a universal association of nations."

In an age of organizations, Mr. Meighen began, the world was not well organized for distribution among its population the fruits of their toil in accordance with the contribution of each. It was certainly not well organized for permanent peace.

It was infinitely important, he said, to understand that war must be ended, for "science has given us so great a command over the elements of nature that millions can be snuffed out in a mere matter of moments."

As soon as war became three-dimensional—got into the upper air and under sea—vast possibilities were opened up. Since the Great War the possibilities of death and destruction from the air had been multiplied 100 times. He quoted Gen. Groves as authority for the statement that 10 minutes could lay a cloud of poison gas from 50 to 100 feet thick over an area of 100 square miles.

The Great War had taught the nations a lot and some real progress had been made. There were the League of Nations, the provisions of the treaty of Versailles, the four-power Pacific convention, the Locarno treaties and the pact of Paris.

All these treaties were good, Mr. Meighen said, but what accompanied their procession across the panorama of history? The remorseless growth of armaments, more colossal, more destructive than the world had ever known.

The committee is very grateful for the above donations, and wish to extend its sincere thanks to the Institutes and Local, as it is difficult to get donations in a year like this, when money seems so scarce.

There will be a card party at Mayview school on January 12th under the auspices of the senior U.F.A. Everyone welcome.

The first regular U.F.A. meeting of the New Year was held at Mr. J. R. Stein's with 23 in attendance counting visitors. Mr. N. L. Richardson presided. There was quite a lot of discussion on different topics, but principally on ways and means of raising funds of which you will hear more later. The community singing is improving and we think with practice we might form an orchestra. The roll call was answered by jokes. After the meeting adjourned the hostess served a very dainty lunch and then we played cards until the wee sma' hours.

Mayview local U.F.A. No. 647 has just completed a most successful year. There are twenty-four members on the roll.

To provide funds and entertainment, a play and dance were put on. Then every two weeks a card party is held at the different homes. These have proven very popular and are much enjoyed by everyone.

During the summer a picnic is put on for the children in co-operation with the school board.

Last June the local sent their first representative to young people's week at the University of Alberta.

Lee Richardson was fortunate enough to go and came home with a lengthy report and full of enthusiasm for Junior U.F.A. work. As a result of his trip a Junior local has been organized with twenty-five young people enrolled. They hold their meetings at the homes or at the school and all report a useful and happy time at every gathering.
